Lower School Soccer

New coaches, new players, great enthusiasm, this was Lower School soccer this season. Coaches Blumberg and Huntsbarger moved as eagerly on the sideline as the fifth and sixth grade players moved on the field. The games were few and the number of players was great, but everyone seemed to feel that the season was worthwhile and exciting. This coed team had many fine moments that hold great promise for the seasons ahead. While the middle school will gain several seasoned players, the fifth grade contingent will form a strong nucleus for '85-'86.

Middle School Girls' Soccer

How many saves can a goalkeeper make when a goalkeeper has to make saves? Ask Jennifer Rhee, the keeper for the middle school girls' soccer team. She was kept busy. Fortunately she had one of the strongest middle school teams on the field in front of her and they too were kept busy. This was the largest team the school has fielded at this level. With a strong core of eighth grade girls, every game was an exciting contest. Watching Ms. Jackson on the sideline was equally as exciting as she made every trap, took every shot, and captured every save. Seventh grade student, Kirsten Swango, led the offense. Strong support was provided by Kim Duke, Sally Remmers, Jessica Siebenthaler, and Lisa Cawley.

Middle School Boys' Soccer

It was a new season. Many new faces were on the field, including that of first year coach, Ken Ashjian. Every middle school boy was going to play in at least one contest during the fall; a tall order for any team. Two areas of strength emerged as the season progressed: Mike Lo-fino's goal keeping kept the games close and the midfield play of Vin Romeo, Ralph Donaldson, Thomas Huber, and Bill Glisson changed the flow of play for opponents. The frontline play of Darrin Bright, Joe Schear, and Hugh Pabarue kept the other teams honest. It was a strong season of soccer. Coach Ashjian's maiden voyage was successful.

Varsity girls' soccer is on the mend. After several years with minimal participation, fifteen girls formed a solid nucleus for the season. This number was enlarged for several games as several tennis players crossed over. It was a season of joy, yet a season of frustration. The girls outplayed most of their opponents, only to find themselves down a goal at the end of the game. The three seniors on the team, led by Tracy Elmer's excellent play at midfield, provided strong leadership. ASSIST student Maria Navarro joined forces with Tricia Hrosso and Lauren Sniderman in this effort. Junior Kristen Moss provided many exciting moments in the goal. The sophomore and freshmen members of the team learned quickly and contributed greatly to the team's development. Despite the losses, Coach Jolson had every reason to feel proud of this team. They played hard, never lost faith, gained considerable confidence in themselves, and proved to be winners no matter what the score. A strong nucleus will provide exciting moments next fall.

Coach Baxendale was new to Miami Valley Soccer and so were most of the players who formed the nucleus of the team. Numbers were thin and on a given day there was no assurance that there would be enough players to field a full team for scrimmage purposes, or for that matter, games. It was a year of growth and learning. Enthusiasm was high and spirits elevated as the players received more and more game time. This was a fine group of players, every one of whom will eventually play an important role in varsity soccer at Miami Valley.

Varsity Boys' Soccer

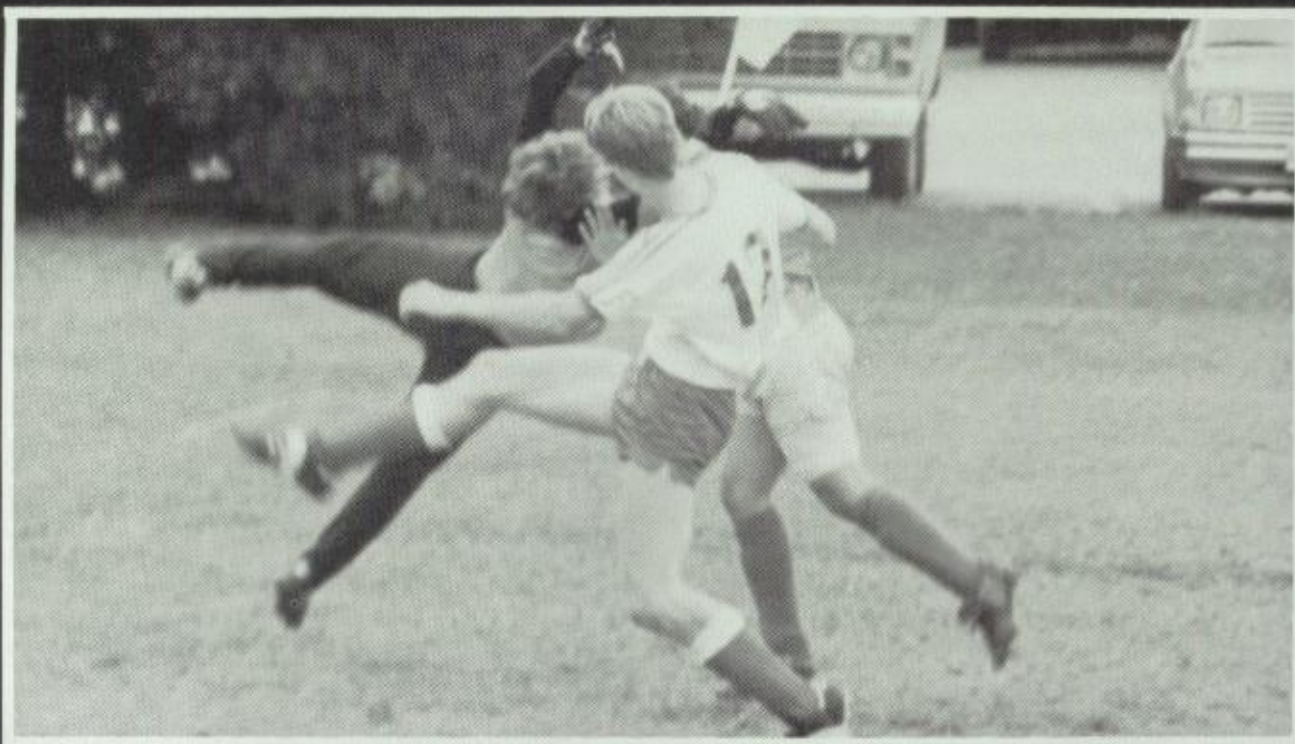

It began at Wilmington College during the last hot days of August. Coach Brereton assembled the players, introduced them to new assistant David Baxendale, and led them through an arduous pre-season camp in preparation for one of the most rigorous schedules faced by an MVS soccer team. The team, led by seniors Rusty Young, Tim Cleary, and John Bertke, began to take shape as the season progressed. Those new to the game learned quickly. Those who had played junior varsity the year before, developed rapidly as varsity players. Jeff Sniderman, Jason Thomas, and Brian Kendall provided a strong forward line. Peter Powell also strengthened this group. Halfbacks Doug Geyer, David Sayler, Mike Peck, David Dieruf, and James Moore rallied the support. Tony Peh and Peter Scheidt supported Bertke and Young at full-back. Strong goal play from Doug Jenks and sub Jon Rion made the difference in several games.

Middle School Girls' Tennis

The middle school athletic program in the fall saw changes in its structure. Each of the students was required to participate with an athletic team, either boys' or girls' soccer or girls' tennis. The result of this was the creation of an extremely strong and developing middle school tennis team. Mr. Ashjian worked with the team during the physical education periods and coach McCaslin took the team to its competitive matches. A large group of eighth grade girls formed the nucleus for the squad. They were joined by two seventh grade students.

Members of the team (starting at one o'clock position) were: Ashley Kent, Mandy McConnaughey, Joan Karnas, Debbie Kay, Lisa Mantil, Anna McCurrach, Elisabeth Schriber, Missy Bouquett, Jenny McKinney, Neda Danesjhoo, Jeannie Mayne, Erin Demirjian, and Holly Wolf.

Varsity Golf

Golf is emerging as a major sport at Miami Valley School. For the past several years the program has relied on the participation of players who have been members of other teams. The cooperation of coaches was essential. This year only one of the players was on another team — Jon Bravo — so the team was able to put in more time on the links working on its game.

The special focus thus provided was evident in the results this year. Matches lost were closer than in the years past. There were matches won. It is anticipated that the '85-'86 team will show even greater improvement as the underclassmen gain experience and as the team is able to practice more regularly. This was the year that golf arrived as a full fledged varsity sport. Watch out next year.

Girls' JV Tennis

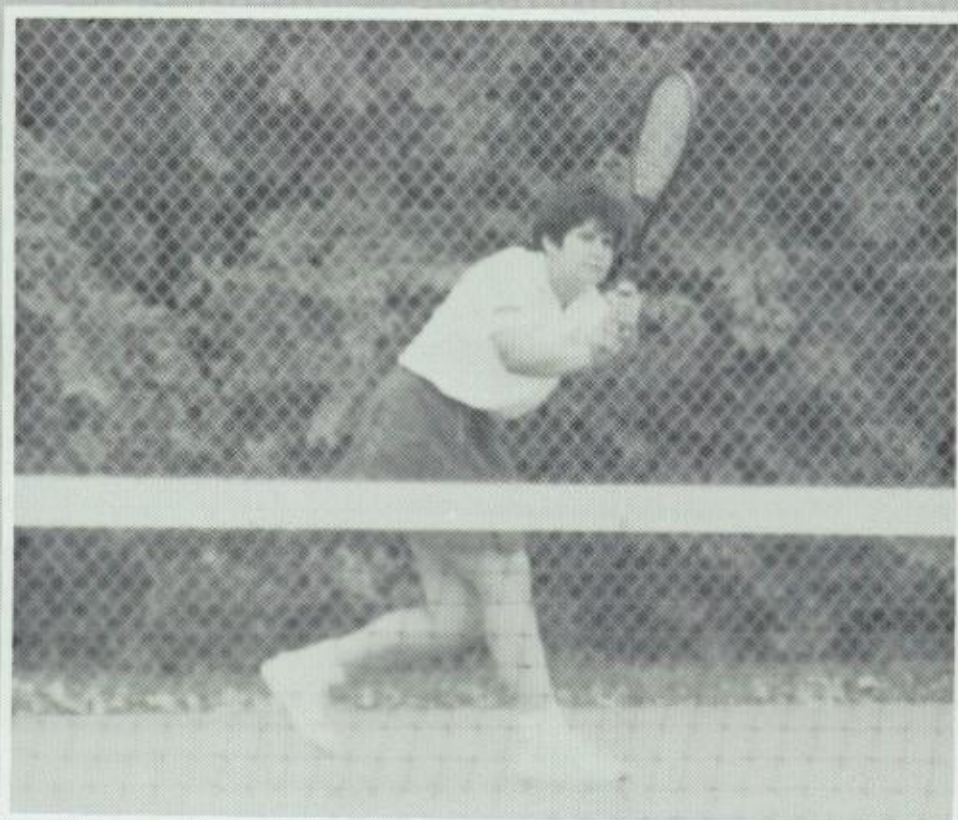

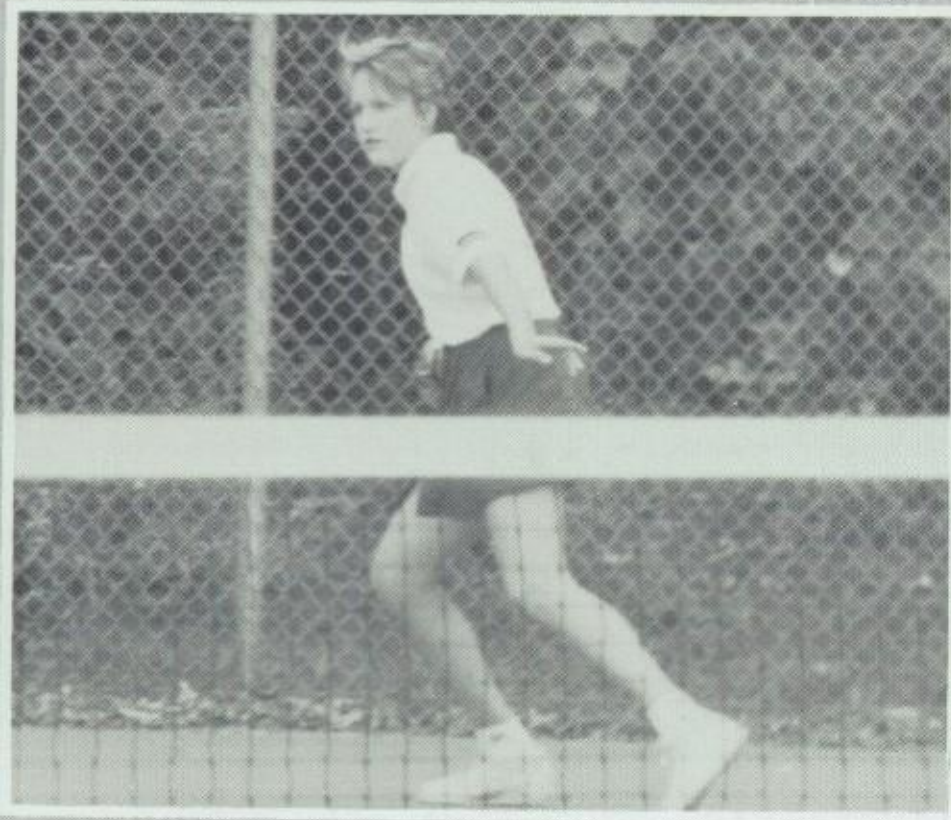

The Miami Valley School has many things of which to be proud. Right at the top of that list is this year's undefeated junior varsity tennis team. A rebuilding year behind a powerful varsity team, Coach McCaslin was hopeful for an even season. This team began the season with a win and never stopped.

Under the leadership of Coach McCaslin the team defeated Fairmont, Greeneview, Oakwood, Troy, and perhaps most memorably, Centerville. The Centerville team had been undefeated for nine years until Miami Valley stepped in and beat them 3-2. It was unquestionably the high point of the season.

Senior Ginger Heyman, playing for her fourth year, provided the team with steadiness and encouragement. Her leadership was important to the success of the team. Susan Bozorgi was the other returning veteran of high school tennis and she too provided a good example to those new to the high school. From the middle school program came Julie Huber, Heidi Breidenbach, Holly Tabrah, and Melissa Rotman. These players demonstrated the confidence gained from interscholastic competition at the middle school level. They were tough. Newcomers Chimene Mayne and Margot Haller completed the squad, and welcome additions were they to it.

The depth of womens' tennis at Miami Valley School is incredible. There should be other undefeated seasons for this group in the future, whether at the JV level or the varsity level. It was a fine way to complete Coach McCaslin's work with girls' tennis. It was an enjoyable season to play.

Girls Varsity Tennis

Awesome! This was the attitude of the victorious girls' varsity tennis team in the '84-'85 season. The young team (only two seniors) had unlimited potential and winning determination. This was proven by the exceptional wins over such teams as Fairmont, CCD, Milton Union, and Brookville. The girls never let up no matter how good or bad the opposition was. Prior to the season, Coach Romeo knew this team was going to be a tough one to beat, and he was right. The season ended with an 18-2 record.

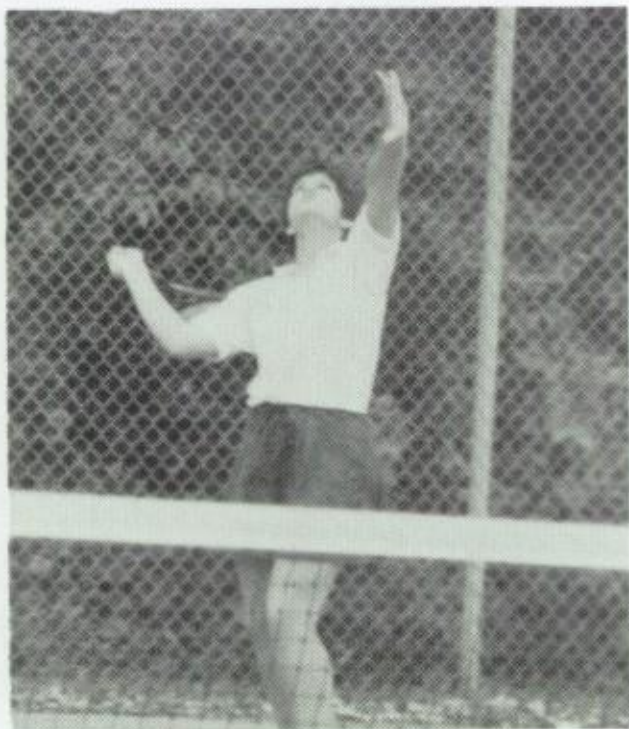

The tough doubles team of Leslie Duberstein and Jenell Ross (18-5) was superb. They were rewarded for their fine season by qualifying for district play. Duberstein, the team captain, played tennis for four years. Her unique personality and superb sportsmanship were highly valued during the season.

The singles players did their share of the work. Mary Spencer, Raya Tabrah, and Dina Cristowere strong performers. Spencer (23-7) qualified for districts and the State Championships.

Lisa Romeo, Lisa Dieruf, Kathy Franz, and Monica Singla filled out the varsity roster with exceptional play.

A new direction was taken in the Lower School basketball program this year. For several years there has been a very successful intramural program which has involved a number of students from grades four through six. Students from those teams have been selected to represent the school in interscholastic contests. This year a traveling team of sixth grade students was identified as the core group to play these contests. This was a hard driving, hard working team which showed a great deal of development throughout the season. Plays were learned and a few of the core concepts of basketball were understood by the players. It was good team basketball as each player was able to contribute to successes. A strong group will swell the middle school program next year.

Middle School Girls' Basketball

The large group of players which assembled for the first day of practice did not last. As the season really got underway, the group was manageable and coachable, and Coach Sharyn Jackson went to work on it. Skill work was done as the girls learned to dribble the ball, control the passes, and move toward the basket. What was not evident in skills was made up for by the hustle, the enthusiasm, and the excitement of the girls. If you have never seen a middle school girls basketball game, you have missed one of the delights of the school year. For excitement, there is none greater available.

This team proved to be one of the more successful in recent years. Though a few players did not stick out the season, those who did have had some valuable experience to bring to the programs next year.

Middle School Boys' Basketball

Front: Nelson Reid, Joey Schear, Philip Whitesell, Travis Mouse, Thomas Huber, Hugh Pabarue, Bill Glisson. Back: Coach Julie Jolson, Vin Romeo, Scott Weinstein, Cheng-Hao Song, Shawn Jones, Nick Berezoski, Michael Lofino.

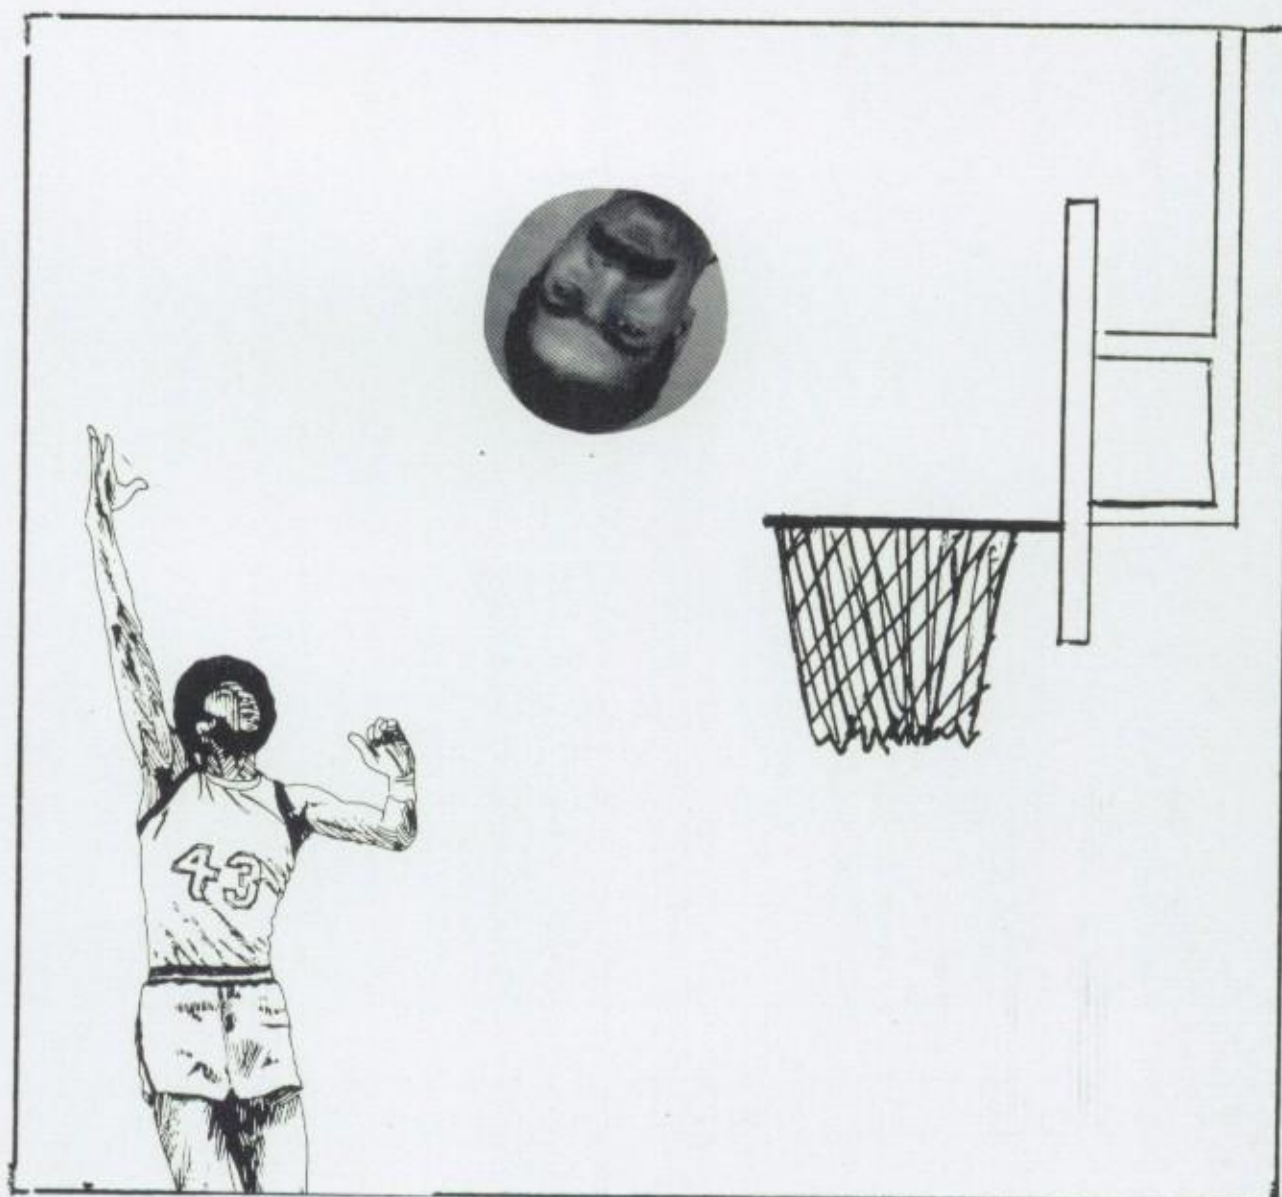

It was an exciting basketball season, and the double overtime game was symbolic of it. Down by too many points at the end of third period it did not look like there was even the hope of a win. But a determined defense, scrappy and sharp, was able to turn the game around while the offense responded in kind. This team played with confidence, determination, and heart. No opponent was too big, too fast, and too good. Unfortunately the team did not win its double overtime game, just like it didn't win all of its season's games, but it made a contest out of a game which should have gone to the opponents without a struggle. It was a great season.

Junior Varsity Boys' Basketball

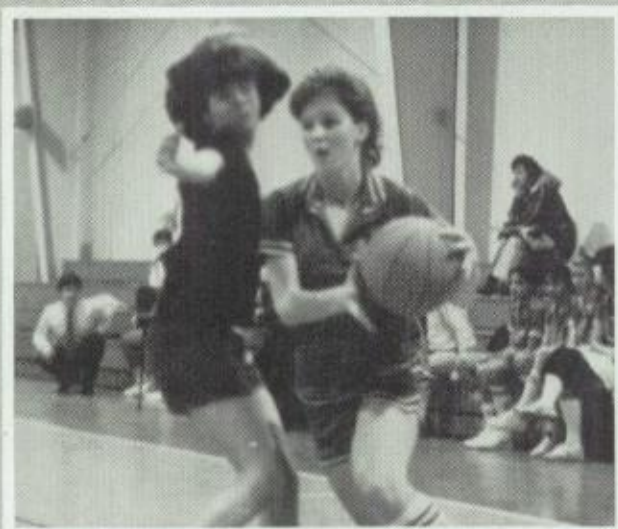

Coach Ashjian, Todd Greenberg, Kevin Arnett, Mike Peck, Alan Seibenthaler, Jon Bernie, Doug Geyer, James Sweeney, Sonu Aggarwal, Gabe Bouquett.

It was a year for development and the youth of the team attested to this. Under the inspired, if frightening, leadership of first-year coach Ken Ashjian, this very green team developed nicely. Pitted against more seasoned and much bigger teams, the MVS club played respectable, solid, fundamental basketball. Probably no team in the school gained more experience than this team during the course of the season. By its end, the team played well together. Many of these players will gain additional game time in JV uniforms next year readying themselves for the openings which will appear at the varsity level in years to come. Each will make a valuable contribution to MVS basketball, no matter which uniform they wear as there is no varsity program without the JV program. Practice for all is a necessity. Congratulations for a job well done, Coach Ashjian and JV team members.

Varsity Girls' Basketball

Glisson needed help. He had never seen so many girls and they all wanted to play. Given the time, the space, and the schedule, how could this happen. Unfortunately, several potential players could not handle the pace of the demands, and left the team. By the beginning of the season, the numbers were manageable and Coach G. had them working hard. Supposed to be a re-building year, these girls were not to accept that analysis. With hard work, strong team play, scrappy defense, and good coaching, the team created a very successful season. The twin towers of Heather Lang and Katherine Franz provided strong support to senior team leader Lisa Dieruf who filled the third spot on the frontline. In the back court Lisa Romeo received strong help from Dana McKenney and younger players. If this was a rebuilding year, just wait until next season.

Varsity Boys' Basketball

Coach Vin Romeo led the team to a fantastic season, eighteen wins to three losses. He prepared the team to play tough, and it was ready. What was to be a rebuilding year, turned in to the basketball program's best year. The team won its first sectional contest, but lost to powerful Springfield Catholic.

This was a talented team. Mark McGuire and Jason Thomas played strong games all season. James Moore's rebounding was a dominant factor in the team's success. Craig Young, the least flashy player on the floor, made the key plays in the big games and provided steadiness throughout the season. Jon Freeman, David Sayler, John Sweeney, David Dieruf, and Todd Weprin responded strongly from the bench filling the necessary roles. Senior Steven Shackleford's enthusiasm and spirit provided leadership for the entire team.

Middle School Boys' Tennis

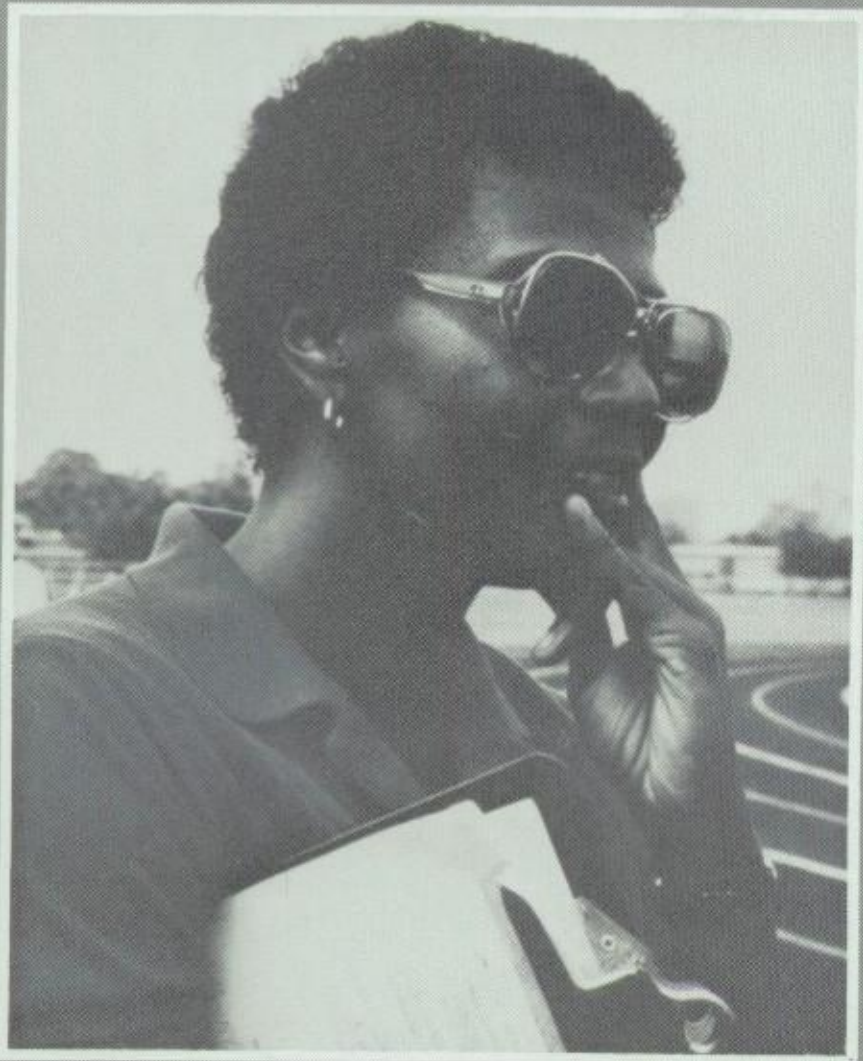

Coaches McCaslin and Romeo have to be very encouraged about boys' tennis in the future at Miami Valley School. The turn out at the middle school level was absolutely incredible and the level of play was strong. The team had good skills, a great deal of energy, and unbelievable self-confidence. It was not going to be defeated easily. The depth provided a different line up for several of the matches in order that all might see competitive action to gain further experience. A strong core of eighth grade students provided leadership (Cristo, Romeo, Glisson, Mitchell, Power, and Donaldson) for the up and coming seventh grade players, each of whom will be reckoned with in the future. Coach Ashjian worked with the players during the practice sessions and Coach McCaslin carried the team to competition. The season was a good one with great promise of even better ones to come.

From top to bottom: Scott Weinstein, Mike Lofino, Vin Romeo, Shane Russell, Brad Hughes, Will Power, Brodie Mitchell, Neil Singla, Thomas Huber, Ralph Donaldson, Aaron Hamilton, Walter Kim, Joey Schear, Nelson Reid, David Montgomery, Billy Glisson, Travis Mouse, Hugh Pabarue, Joey Cristo, and Lee Williard.

Enthusiasm is Ms. Jackson's middle name, and there was certainly no lack of it in middle school track this spring. When coach Jackson is fired up, so is everybody else. She can make something seem fun, even when it isn't. Fortunately, this was not a problem for the girls' track team, for there was plenty of energy evident and many goals met.

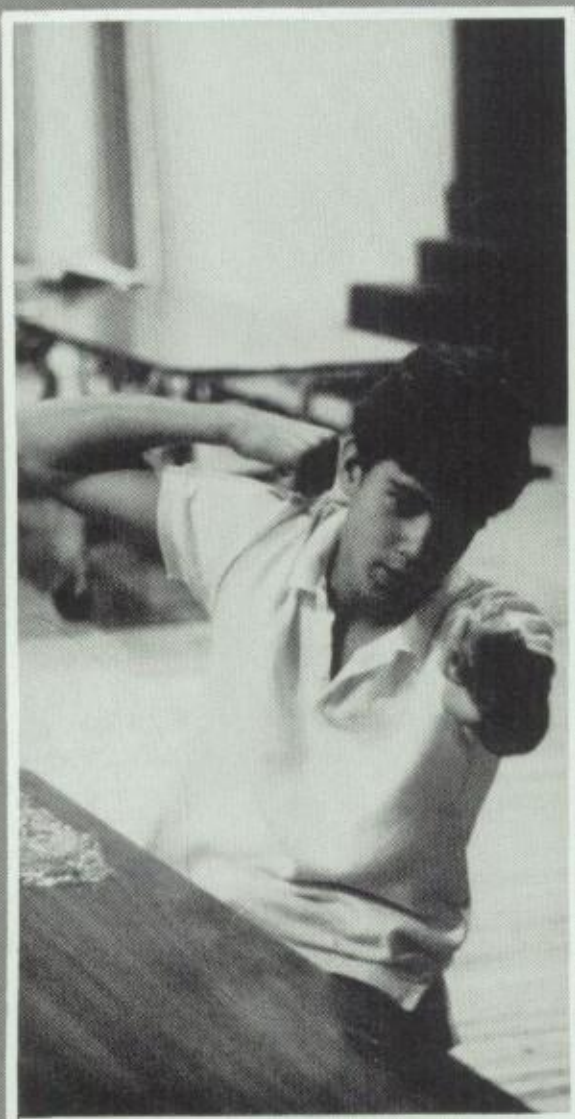

Still a growing program, members of the team entered meets in individual events, mostly on the track. The pleasant surprise of the season was the accomplishments of several members in the field events, an area where MVS has had little success for a lot of good reasons. Personal bests were reached by many of the participants. "J" worked the group hard, but with understanding, and all advanced in skills and experience. There is the nucleus for a good varsity program in these middle school students.

Junior Varsity Boys' Tennis

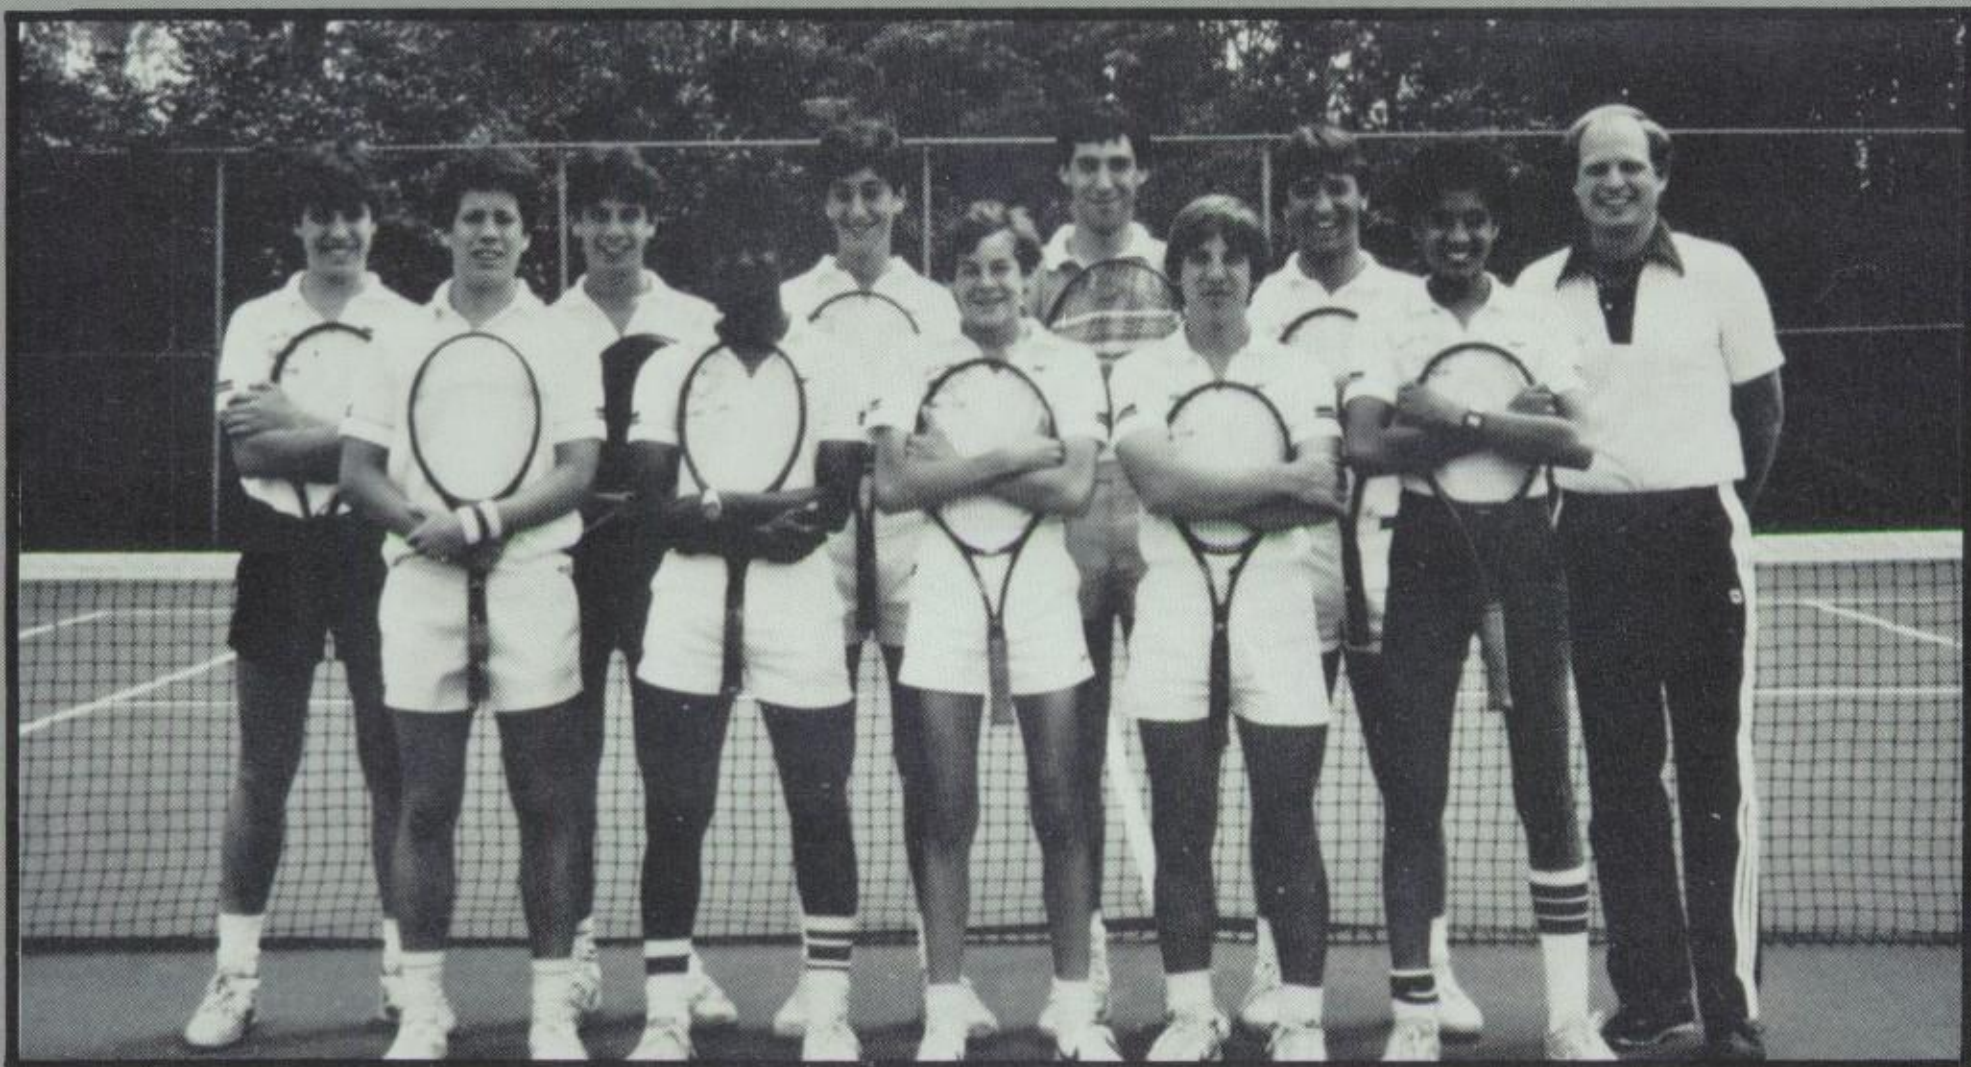

Coach John McCaslin completed his coaching career at Miami Valley with a strong group of tennis players. Each was an experienced tennis player and was able to contribute strongly to the effectiveness of the team. Senior Phil Rotman led the team with his positive attitude and natural enthusiasm. Each player was able to compete in matches while sharpening competitive skills. The team completed the season with a three win, four loss record against tough competition. Several of these players will move on to varsity competition in the next two seasons well prepared to handle the pressure at this level.

Varsity Boys' Tennis

This year's boys' tennis team anticipated a year of rebuilding, but has achieved far more than this expectation suggests. Four of the seven top players from last year's team did not return. Coach Romeo found the team to consist mostly of underclassmen with little varsity experience.

After examining the schedule, Coach Romeo set as a goal a 10-8 season record. Though lacking experience, this young team posted a 20-2 record and saw the doubles team of Jon Freeman and Greg Margolis play in the State Tennis matches in Columbus. Three other players advanced to district play before submitting: David Reid, Jon Bernie, and Ramesh Avva. All of this was icing on the cake for Romeo whose team provided him his 300th coaching win in tennis.

Varsity Track

It was a very good year, one reflective of change, and there were several. Mr. Sampson assumed the responsibility of varsity track coach, and did so with enthusiasm and good cheer. For the first year in several years there were more boys on the team than girls. During the immersion period, some of the team could be found in the SAC after school running laps and stretching with Sampson firmly grasping his ever present stop watch. During the spring trimester, team members became very familiar with the surrounding neighborhood as the coach sent them out for timed, short distance runs. Even Mr. Zaluski turned out to function as the rabbit in several training runs.

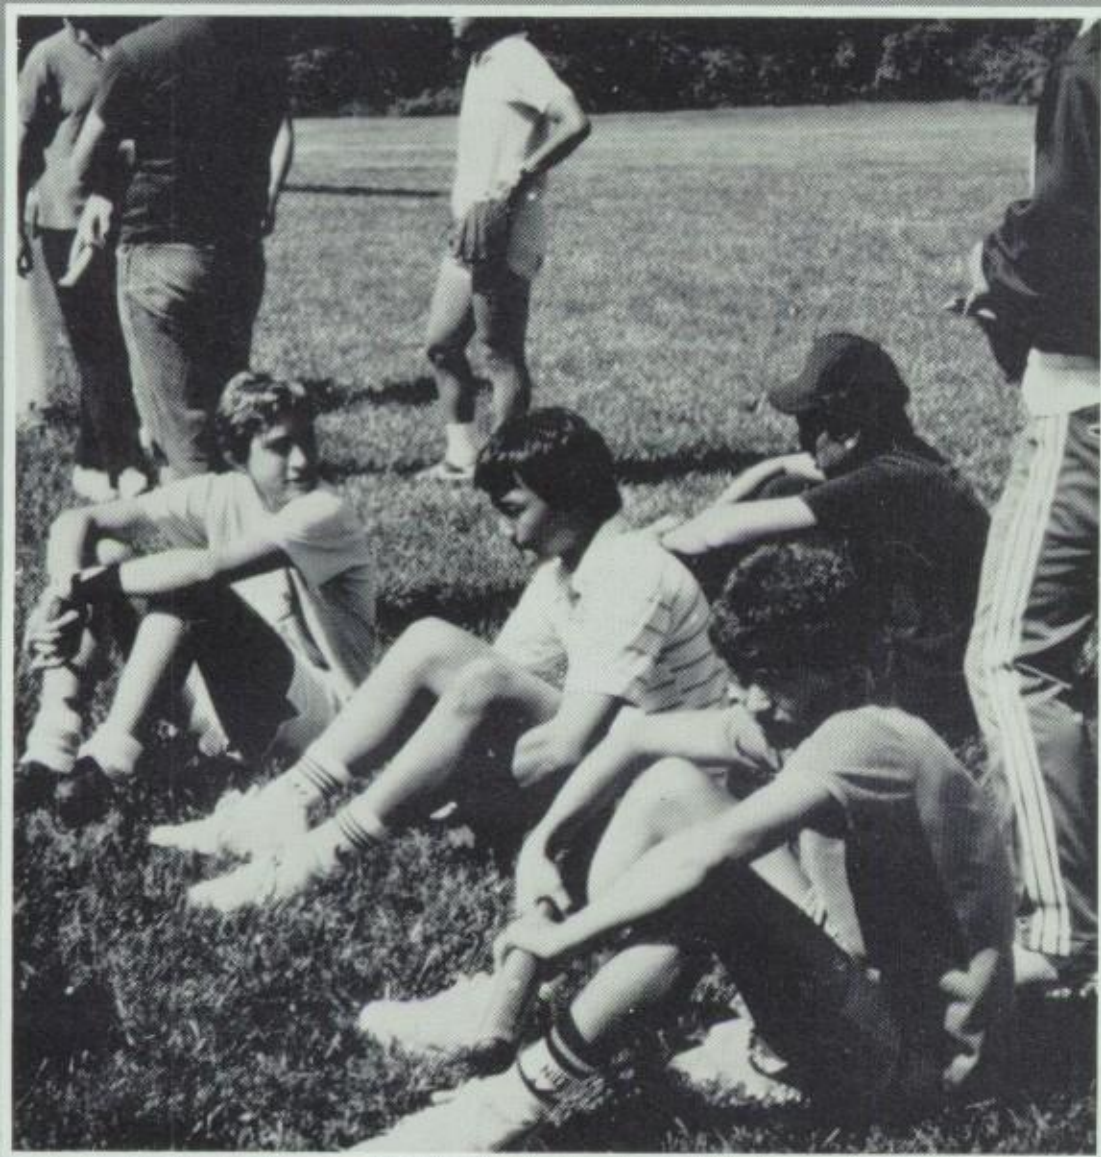

Though the team did not have the depth or experience to walk away with many honors from the meets entered, it was able to provide individual achievement. Each student established new personal bests, an important moment in the life of a runner. Walls were broken down and new territories explored. It was, indeed, a very good year and with main group of students returning, it will be even better in '86.

Baseball

"We will not have a team unless a few more people will come out." Another year; another plea for baseball. But it was not just another year as it turned out. Though still thin in numbers, Coach Ashjian was able to bring together a squad to be reckoned with. First, there was a full schedule of games. Next, there was the enthusiasm and knowledge of the coach. Next, there was the clearing of an adequate diamond (for practice only) on campus. Next, there was the leadership of MVS' biggest baseball fan, Hao Wu. Next, there was the pitching of Mark McGuire, Tony Peh, and Alan Seibenthaler. Next, there was the outstanding development of David Dieruf as a catcher. It was a good season, one to remember, with the promise of more to come.

Kneeling: Sonu Aggarwal, Tony Peh, Todd Weprin, Hao Wu, Mark McGuire. Standing: Coach Ashjian, Larry Luehrs, David Sayler, Alan Seibenthaler, Craig Young, David Dieruf.

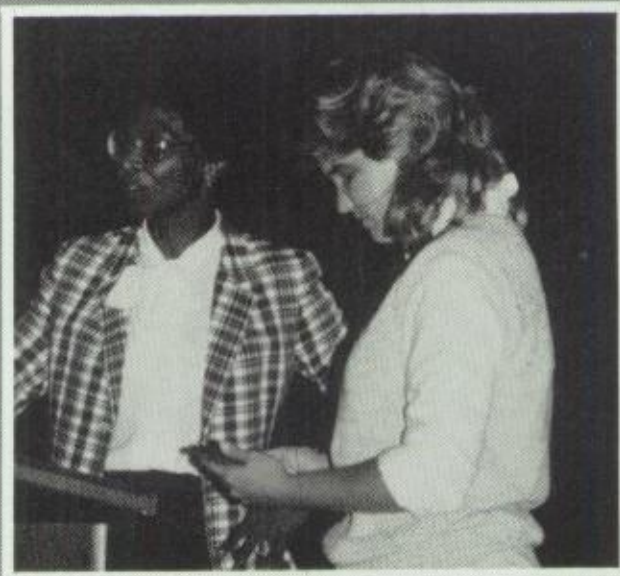

Softball

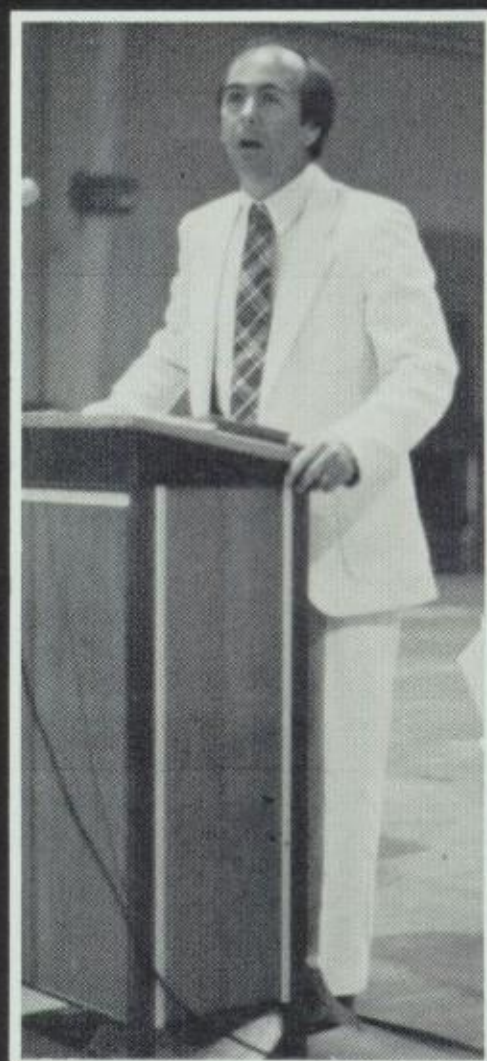

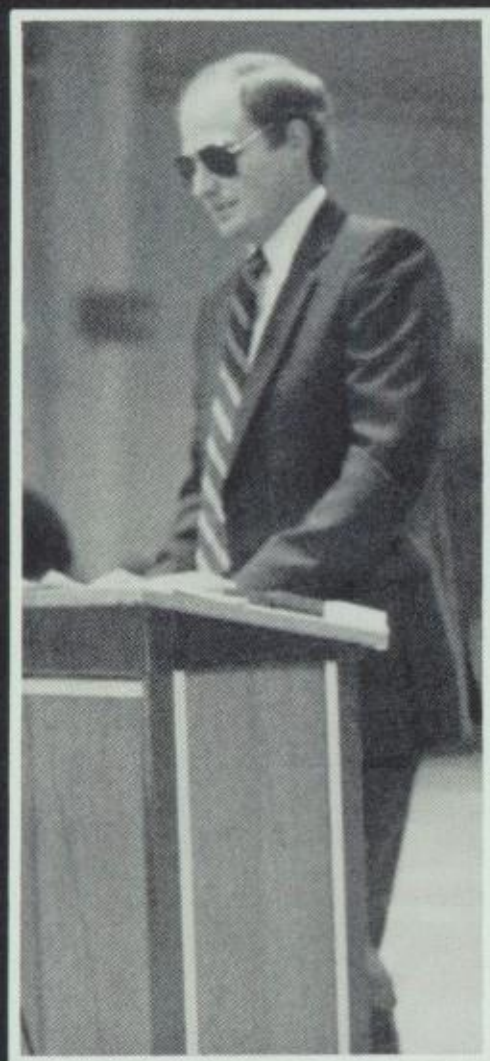

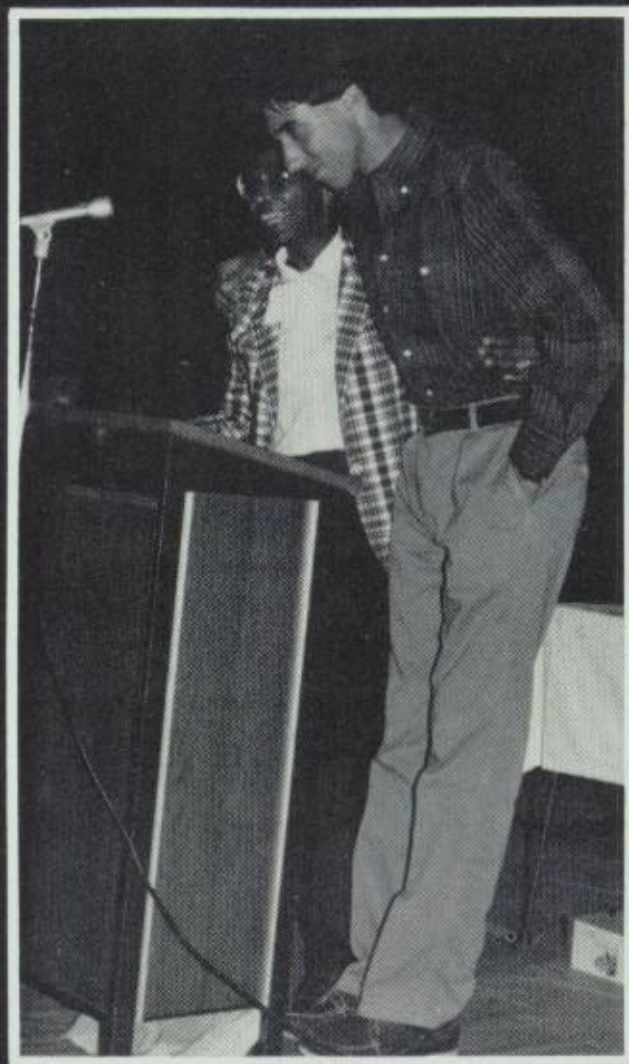

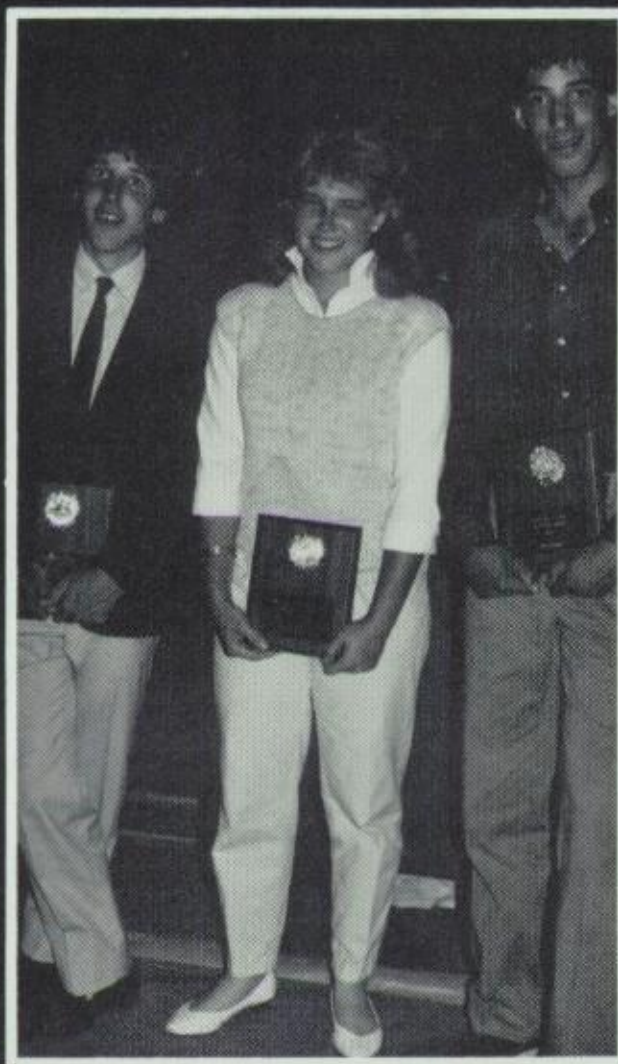

Fifteen girls out for the softball team? Wow! For the first time in years, the ears of the students were not assaulted with pleas for others to join the team. The four upperclassmen on the team were joined by an outstanding and enthusiastic group of freshmen and sophomores. Under the able leadership of coaches Gayle Blumberg and Julie Jolson, the softball program made giant strides. Skills were stressed and the advancement was tremendous. Though all too frequently on the losing end of the scoring, the group kept working. Senior leaders Leslie Duberstein and Tricia Hrosso and junior standouts Lisa Romeo and Kathy Seyfarth provided the attitude and encouragement needed to complete the season. Good experience was gained by all and the future of Miami Valley softball is in excellent hands. The next several years should be good ones.

ORGANIZATIONS

Leadership Seminar

Something new appeared on the scene soon after school began in the fall of 1984. Each of the students in the school who held leadership positions (captains of fall athletic teams, presidents, editors, student council members) was invited to participate in the school's first leadership workshop. Dr. Demaree led a group of faculty volunteers in organizing the program for the event. A number of areas were addressed including parliamentary procedures, oral presentation, creating the agenda, and methods of involving others. The training sessions were valuable. The program also provided for early interaction between students of different grades and with different concerns. It assured some commonality in the method of leading others in all school programs.

Model United Nations

Under the guidance and encouragement of the sponsor, Mrs. Inbody, the Miami Valley School delegation to the University of Dayton Model United Nations program received a warm welcome. The great number of participants allowed the school to enter several delegations. The success enjoyed by the participants in this program provided a strong base for the spring participation in the national Model United Nations program in New York City. Representing Japan, the Miami Valley students went well prepared (several students had visited Japan during Immersion) and performed well. One of the awakenings for the delegates was the fact that in spite of Japan's economic status, when it comes to voting strength in the UN this status is not very powerful. Special thanks to Mrs. Inbody for the prodding and encouragement.

Drama

Agatha Christie's infamous play, The Mousetrap, crossed the boards of Miami Valley's stage in November of 1984. Directed by Peter Camm, and performed on a set designed by Tom Elmer, the classic whodunit was skillfully performed by actors from the high school. The cast included veteran performers Jon Bravo, Joe Gilvary, Ginger Heyman, and Elizabeth Bernstein. These people were ably supported with newcomers Margot Haller, Sara Wagner, and Chris Wydman. The well paced show kept the audience alive as the intrigues and twists so familiar to Christie's work evolved.

Unfortunately this was the only production of the '84-'85 school year. Conflicting schedules kept others from occurring. With the interest in theatre alive in the school, it is hoped that the next school year will see an increase in dramatic events.

Write about my American experience? In only two hundred words? Impossible! I could write a book!

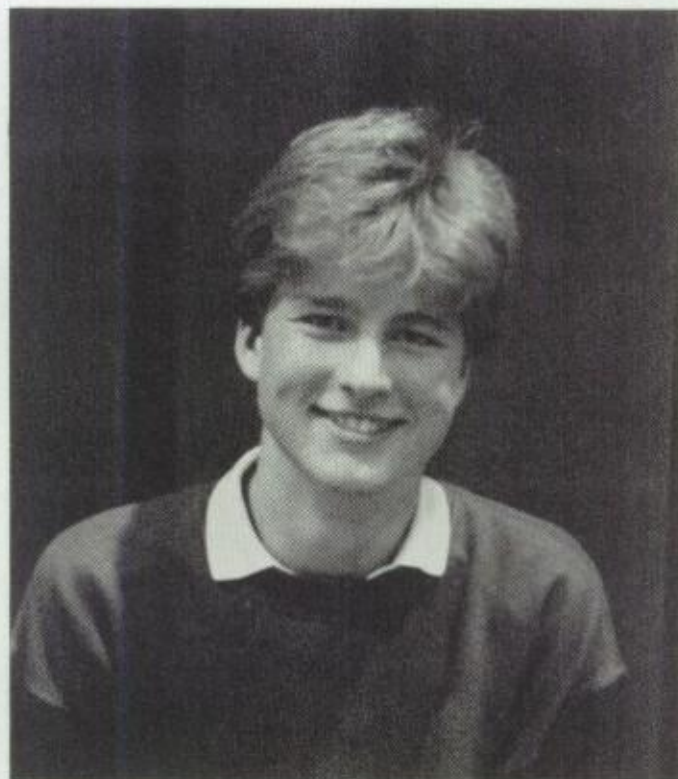

I have to recognize that before coming, I was afraid. I was afraid about the school, the people, the activities, the contrast of cultures and ideologies, the language, and myself. I thought I would miss too much the Mediterranean enthusiasm, but I was wrong. Of course Spain and the United States are different, but my family in Miami Valley has helped me to love both ways of life. People in the school were excellent, and taught me many things about life, understanding, and friendship. I will be glad if I have also helped someone to learn anything about people. Thank you for the irreplaceable experience.

To all my friends; to the soccer, basketball, and track teams; to the senior class; to the faculty; and to all those people who helped me go to the newspaper and to the Indian reservation, thank you very much.

My best wishes to my three families: the Hallers, the Mantils, and the Navarros.

Love,

Maria Navarro

Dear MVS,

This has been a wonderful year for me. A lot of great people and events crossed my way. Everybody was helpful in getting me started and in keeping me going.

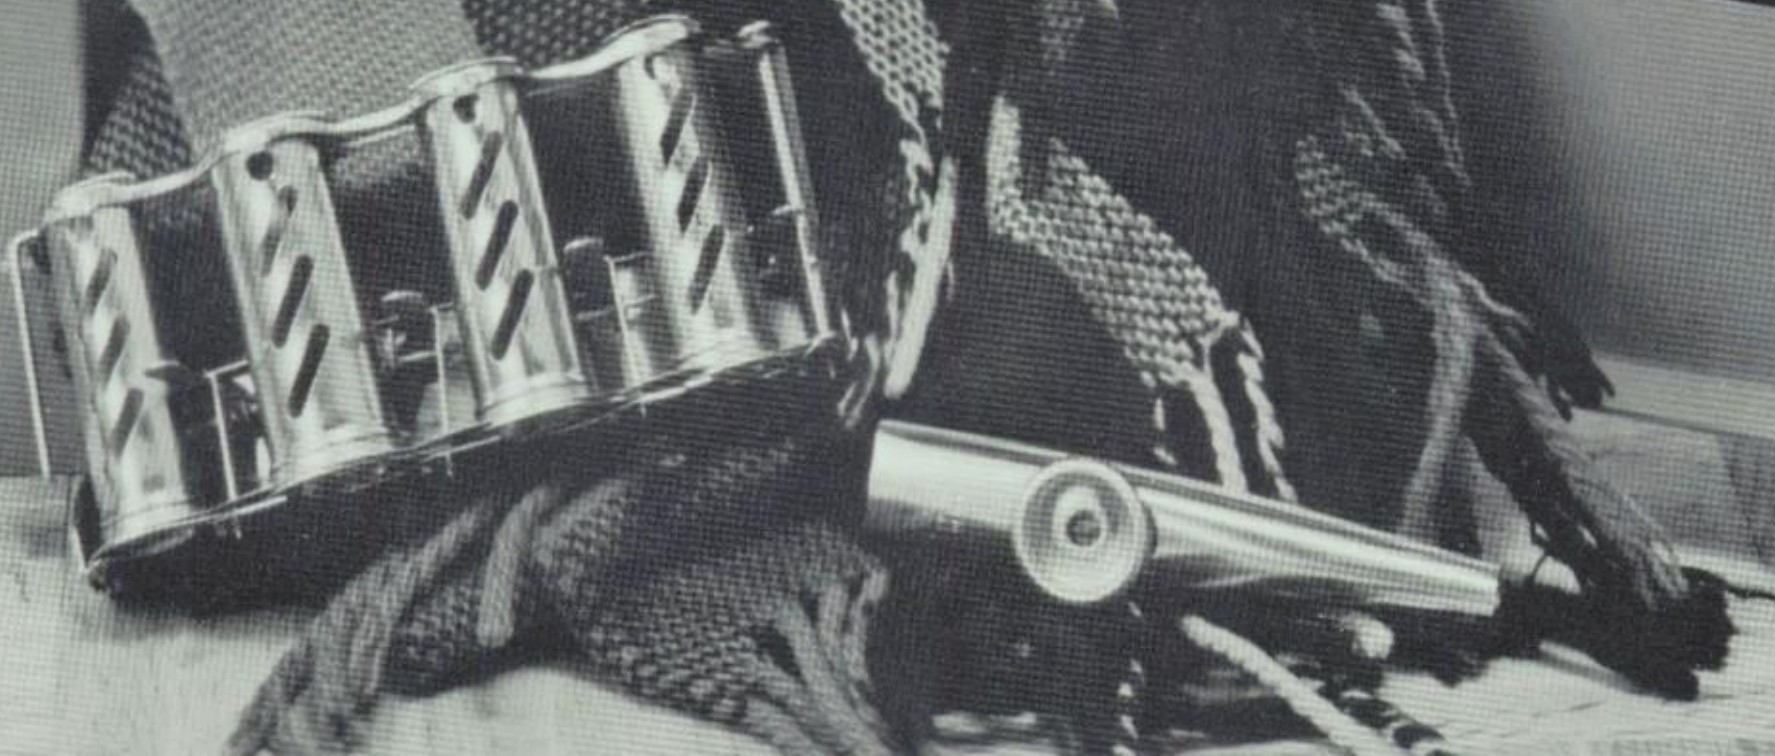

MVS is a small school, but with that it has great advantages. The teacher-student relationship is very close, so that you thought of the faculty as friends. The grades are small and everybody is your friend. Some work was also a new experience and all this contributed to develop my new attitude toward learning and school. (I still do not like school, but I think, more positively of it).

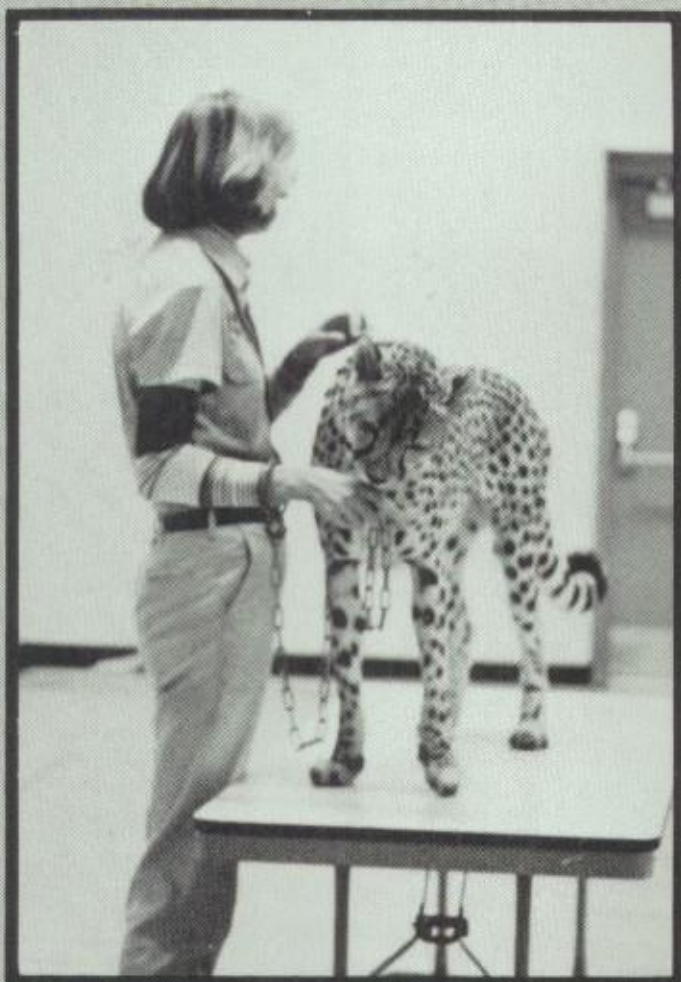

My thanks go to every student and each faculty member, but especially to Steve Black and the Call family who hosted me so nicely for the whole year.

Thanks again,

Peter Scheidt
